TANK CREWS PICKED MEN

Short and Wily Soldiers Necessary for the Dangerous Work

British Headquarters in France—Under the shelter of a green ridge of shell-proof farm land about fifteen miles behind the present front line, French tanks are being prepared for the coming battle. The crews of these tanks are being picked from the best of the British army. They are short, wily, and experienced. They are the men who will be in the front line of the battle.

PRODUCE MORE PORK

Principal meat of Army, City, and Navy—How Raising is Profitable and Patriotic

The quickest and surest way of augmenting the meat supply next to the raising of poultry is by raising hogs. The United States Department of Agriculture points out. The hog is the most important animal to raise for meat and money. He requires less food, less equipment, less capital, makes greater gains per hundred pounds of concentrates and reproduces almost faster than any other animal. As a consumer, he produces the hog has no rival. No other animal equals the hog in its fat-storing tendency. The most satisfactory meat for shipping long distances on train, boat, or wagon, and for long storage after reaching its destination is meat pork. There is no animal which produces more meat and meat products than the hog.

MAY CALL 14,000 NURSES INTO WAR SERVICE IN NEXT 18 MONTHS

The American Red Cross anticipates

Plans for increasing at once the number of professional nurses available for service in military hospitals abroad and in the United States, without lessening the safeguards of the civil population or lowering standards of the nursing profession, were the subject of conference held yesterday between the Red Cross and the American Nurses Association, headed by Edna Roberts, S. Lovett, the Red Cross Medical Advisory Board, and the American Nurses Association. Committees representing the leading nursing associations of the country, as the meeting, some of the most distinguished representatives of the medical and nursing professions were present. Dr. Simon Flexner presided.

WOMEN, CARE FOR 2,000,000 MEN

Estimates were put before the conference, showing that approximately 14,000 nurses may be called into war service in the next 18 months. This number should be able to care for an army of nearly 2,000,000 men. How to replace them is the problem. The Red Cross is now enrolling in the Red Cross ranks for instant service. KAISER QUOTED AS SATISFIED WITH THE SUBMARINE WAR IN ENGLISH CHANNEL

Said to Have Told Richthausen Leads Constantly Followed—German It Had Surpassed Expectations to Break Through Great

Copenhagen, July 25.—The Kaiser's attitude toward the submarine war in the English Channel is one of satisfaction, according to a statement made by the German ambassador here. The Kaiser is said to have told Richthausen, the German ambassador in Copenhagen, that the German submarine campaign in the English Channel has surpassed his expectations. He is said to have told him that the German submarine campaign in the English Channel has surpassed his expectations.

RULING ON EXEMPTION QUESTION

Case of War Supply Workers to Be Decided on Individual Basis

In reply to a letter asking for a statement from the War Department as to its policy in exempting men employed in the manufacture of material used by the Government in the war from military service under the selective draft law, the following reply was received:

WORK ON VAST AIR FLEET

Draft Will Be Used to Get 100,000 Men—Automobile Factories Required to Make Motors

Washington, July 25.—Plans for the construction of the great air fleet which is designed to effect the defeat of Germany are well advanced. The peacetime program of construction provides for 25,000 airplanes and a force of 100,000 men, trained to maintain and pilot them. Five hundred of these planes are to be ready for service before January 1, and after that date they will be turned out at the rate of thousands per month. With $400,000,000 immediately available through the passage of the aviation appropriation bill, the Government will give all arrangements well in hand, making stands in the way of the prompt and effective execution of this program.

Grunting and puffing, creaking and complaining, they move along, not with the easy stride of the tank book giants, but with the cumbersome gait of a huge muscle-bound turtle, house on house. But nothing discomposes them in their grumbling advance. They mount a terrace five feet high, with the same dignity, complaining none the less, and negotiate a mole hill and the steady pace of their caterpillars is unchanged whether climbing up a steep "mole" or descending a descending slope.

The job of a tank man is a strenuous one. The interior is hot, built for comfort, it is crowded with machinery and guns and armor, and in motion the tank wags and bucks like that of a little torpedoes boat in a storm. Nor is the road high enough to prevent dashing off (receiving a sound thumping if one is tall). Tanks are not as quick as a tank. They are not as quick as a tank. They are not as quick as a tank.

If you would spend a few minutes toward a tank, you will find that it is not as simple as it looks. It is a machine that is not as simple as it looks. It is a machine that is not as simple as it looks. It is a machine that is not as simple as it looks.

A Test of Ability.

Perhaps the greatest of ability lies in our reserve power. When we first enter actively into life's experience we do not regard this fact as essential to our welfare; indeed, we are then at that stage of existence when we do not think beyond the present, but as time goes on we learn through practical knowledge that it is wise to keep in reserve certain forces with which to meet with success unexpected emergencies. We cannot take out of our lives what we have not put into it, and in order to be in a position to have reserve powers from which to draw when necessary we must continue, day after day, year after year, to accumulate these powers. How to do this of course, is the problem of the individual, but the first step in accomplishing this object is the will to do it. Without that we shall not get very far, because the man who lacks "spring" will never succeed. The more highly he develops his mind the better able he is to understand the need for persevering in his business, and the more he develops his mind the better able he is to understand the need for persevering in his business, and the more he develops his mind the better able he is to understand the need for persevering in his business.

STOCKMEN THREATEN TO BOYCOTT RAILROADS

Chicago, July 23.—S. N. McClure, of Salt Lake City, secretary of the National Wool Growers' association today declared that stockmen would boycott every railroad that adopted the proposed food conservation plan of refusing to serve spring lambs in their dining cars. According to McClure, the stockmen would refuse to patronize the dining cars on these roads and will ship their stock over other lines. A telegram from him received here said:

"Our stockmen took their share of Liberty bonds, gave heartily to the Red Cross and will be heavy payers of war taxes. If their products are to be boycotted simply because they have risen in price along with every commodity then our only recourse is to do some boycotting ourselves. If we cannot sell our products then we will stop raising them."

Officials of grade with headquarters in Chicago said they would aid the government in its campaign for food conservation despite the threat of the western stockmen.

BEAUTY SPOT OF THE MOUNTAINS

In Western North Carolina there is a section of country known the world over on account of the wonderful scenery, fine climate and the cleverly accommodating "mountain people." They have provided nice hotels and boarding houses, and almost every farm home has thrown open its doors to the people of the lowlands at rates that are so low almost any one can afford to spend a few days or a few weeks among these kind hearted mountain people.

This section is known as Cherry Rock, and is reached either by way of Rutherfordville, over the Seaboard Air Line, or Hendersonville, over the Southern Railroad. From Asheville every farm home has thrown open its doors to the people of the lowlands at rates that are so low almost any one can afford to spend a few days or a few weeks among these kind hearted mountain people.
